SELKIRKSHIRE INCOME ACT.

WE the Commissioners named for the County of Selkirk, under the Income Act, hereby intimate, that we have spointed an Assessor for giving the notice required by law, and have fixed our next meeting on Wednesday the 17th July 1799, at 12 o'clock mid-day, at the Writing Office of Mr Andrew Henderson, writer in Selkirk, our clerk, for the purpose of examining the returns then made.

JAMES PRINGLE. SELKIRKSHIRE INCOME ACT.

CITY & ROYALTY OF EDINBURGH INCOME TAX

CITY & ROYALTY OF EDINBURGH INCOME TAX OFFICE, No. 7. South Bridge Street, 24th June 1799

The Assessor having completed the delivery of the Notices in terms of the Act of Parliament, to the Householders within the City and Royalty of Edinburgh, the Commissioners will give attendance at this Office, every Monday, Tosday, Wednesday; and Friday, from 12 o'clock noon, to 3 o'clock afternoon, till further notice, for carrying the purposes of the Act into execution.

Being informed that sundry persons, founding upon a mistaken idea, have supposed that from the amount of their income, they are intitled to deduct the rent of their dwellingbouse, and maintenance of their family, holding the overplus to be the sum liable in assestment, the Commissioners find it recessary to give notice, that no such deductions are allowed by the Act of Par liament, and that such persons as have already made the return of their income, formed upon these erromous principles, may have it in their power to correct the mistake, they are desired to call at this Office, during the hours of the Commissioners farther beg leave to call the attention of persons liable in the income tax, to the following particulars, with respect to which, there is reason to believe, that a misrepresentation has taken place.

18. With regard to the Assessed Taxes, it is only the single rate, or annual duty; that was paid before the late act of the 18th of his Majesty, commonly called the Aid and Contribution Act, that is allowed to be deducted from the amount of income, and not the triple assessment.

26. That the sum paid last year as a Voluntary Contribution tion Act, that is allowed to be deducted from the amount of income, and not the triple assessment.

2d, That the sum paid last year as a Voluntary Contribution for carrying on the war, is not to be deducted from the income of the person who contributed the same.

2d, That the expence of children at public Schools, or Universities, or boarded with private Teachers, is not a deduction warranted by law, these children being considered as forming a part of the family, and no other allowance is to be given for them, than the rate of per centage upon the sum to be assessed, according to the number of children, as fixed by the act.

The Commissioners of the County, having published in the different newspapers, the particular deductions allowed in the act, it is necessary that every person peruse and consider the same before returning the statement of income, agreeable to one or other of the forms in the notice delivered by the asses-By order of the Commissi cate those troublesome excrescences to which thousands are so much subject. It gives the patient ease from the most excruciating pain in a few hours after the first application. Persons who have been almost crippled for many years, have experienced a perfect cure in three, five, eight, and others in twelve days, according to the obduracy of the Corns.—It is worthy of remarking, that this Medicine, when properly and duly persevered in, has never been found to fail in performing a cure; and is so mild in its composition, that every description of people may use it in all seasons of the year, and in every climate.

Gardner's Celebrated Corn Oil is sold by

J. BAXTER, Italian Wardonse, Edinburgh;

TO THE AFFLICTED WITH CORNS.

TO THE AFFLICTED WITH CORNS.

MR HERMAN LION, dentist, Liner-Hall Court, Canongate, Edinburgh, during a residence of many years in this metropolis, has never ventured to offer any specific remedy for the cure of corns, for he was hitherto convinced that all the applications for these troublesome excrescences were calculated to produce merely a temporary relief. After having practised in this line, with considerable success, in extracting the roots of such callosities, he has tried all possible expedients to prevent a return of them.

At length, and after repeated trials, the success of which is well attested by a respectable number of his employers, he flatters himself that he has ultimately discovered a remedy hitherto unparalleled in the history of that disease.

This medicine is put up in packets of 2s. each, to be had at Mr Lion's house, and the following places, viz.

This is one of the most desirable Store Forms to be met with—Also, The Lands and Farm of YET—BYRE, in the parish and county aforesaid. This farm is also of very considerable extent, and of excellent quality. It lies between the waters of Black and White Esk, a small part thereof being on the east side of White Esk—the Farm, which is two miles in length, for ming one complete inclosure. There is a considerable quantity of good arable land, which might be much improved at a moderate expense, being within a short distance from Langholm, where there is near access to lime, and to which there is a good road. The stock upon Yetbyre for long sheep, and on Moodlaw or Upper Raeburn for short sheep, has long been esteemed the very best of their kinds, and of the first character amongst dealers. There is a convenient house and offices on Yetbyre, and a most delightful situation.

HOUSE OF LORDS-July 5.

The order of the day being called for on the flave trade limitation bill, which was for the House to go into a Committee upon it,

The Dake of CLARENCE maintained that all maritime nations whatever concurred in the policy of the flave trade. America, he faid, had indeed paffed an act of legislature to abolish it, but it was the misfortune of the Americans to have a government that was not always able to carry the acts of its legislature into ef fect. His Royal Highness then entered into some calculations of the value of the business that was connected with the flave trade, in which, he faid, was embarked upwards of feventy millions Sterling. The tonnage of the fhips employed in which he confidered as equal to the tonnage of the whole shipping of this country at the end of the last century; besides, being thus immenfely beneficial to the revenue, it was fuch a nurfery for feamen; and was indeed replete with advantages to the whole of the British empire. At all of these advantages the bill now before the House aimed a destructive blow. His Royal Highness concluded with observing, that he trusted their Lordships would do him the juffice to believe that nothing but a fense of duty he owed to his King and his country could have prevailed on him to come forward upon this most important occasion.

Lord GRENVILLE, after expreshing his admiration of the eloquence of the illustrious personage who had just spoken, observed, that between him and his Royal Highness there could personally be no debate, because, between them, there was no equality.

Lord ROMNEY called to order.—He agreed with no equality between an illustrious Prince and any other the Noble Secretary of State, that personally there was personal equality between his Royal Highness and any other Member then in the House there was none, bu he always understood that his Majesty having called any person to a feat in that House gave him an equality with any other personage in it, as to the right of speak He understood that he had an equal right with that illustrious personage to deliver his sentiments in that House. His Royal Highness had indeed done himself great credit by the speech he had delivered upon this subject, but the right of speaking was equal in that Lord GRENVILLE was far from taking it unkindly that his noble relation had spoken to order. He was clearly convinced, however, he had infringed upon no rule of order. He questioned no right of speech in that House: he only said that between his Royal Highness and himself, there could be no debate personally, because there was no equality.

Lord THURLOW. I wish to have it clearly underflood, whether it is the conflitution of this House, that we are unequal in our rights to speak here? I am one of the lowest in point of rank. I contend not for superiority of talent, or for any preference, for any confideration whatever; but I claim to be exactly equa not only to the illustrious personage who has just spoken, and who your Lordships have heard with so much pleafure, but also with the Prince of Wales, if he were prefent in this House, and acting as a Peer of Parliament I know of no differences between Peers of Parliament confidered in their Parliamentary character, and I do think that the lowest rank in the House is equal to the highest, while we are debating. If birth or talents created an inequality in our rights to speak in this House the illustrious personage who has just spoken would have a higher right than I pretend to have, but I do claim for my humble felf an equality with every Prince of the blood, or any other who has a feat in this House, to fpeak my fentiments.

Lord Grenville then faid, he should proceed up on the question before the House without another word upon the subject which had just called their Lordships' attention. He observed that this bill was objected to as a measure that seemed to lead the way to a general abo lition. He approved of it on that account, and confeffed he wished the whole question of total abolition was carried. He maintained that all opposition to the bill was the effect of prejudice and militaken interest working its own ruin by an obstinacy that was equal to its own blindness. The bill now before their Lordflips ought to meet the approbation of all those who confidered the question as a mere question of arithmetic, for according to their own shewing, it would only do away one twentieth of the profits of the trade, while it took off one fourth of the evil of it. The question of the abolition must again soon be agitated; it was impossible that a trade that was the occasion of fraud, rapine and murder, fuch as the flave trade was, can long be allowed to continue the reproach of the British ParThe Earl of WESTMORELAND opposed the bill. Lord Morton thought it a nugatory measure.

Lord HOLLAND made an eloquent speech against the save trade, and for the bill before the House.

Lord HAY ( Earl of Kinnoul ) opposed the bill. The Bishop of ROCHESTER entered at large into the subject of the slave trade, and declared himself an entire enemy to it. He made a very able speech upon the trade as affecting morality, and although not against the letter, yet most manifestly against the spirit of the Christian religion. He considered the dealers in slaves as much more favage than those whom they enslaved. He declared, amongst a great number of other strong things, that the slave carrying ships were pestilential jails, in which human life was walted and profusely squandered

Lord THURLOW replied to the Bishop of Rochester and opposed the bill on a variety of grounds. He faid, that he could not fee that in the best system of morality, and the purest system of religion which had ever appeared, the Christian religion, there was any prohibition a gainst flavery like that which had been argued by the Reverend Prelate. With respect to the present bill, he could not think it at all calculated for any thing like the purposes which it professed to have in view. very fevere upon the Sierra Leona company, their piety and professions, and ridiculed such a pretension from a corporation fo new as theirs. After a great number of general observations, he concluded with expressing his decided disapprobation of the bill, and said that the principles on which the Reverend Prelate had argued were those of the rights of man.

The House called loudly for the question. For the bill 25-against it 32-Majority 7, Proxies 36 each. Bill thrown out.—Adjourned to Monday.

It we can give credit to these papers, the Brest fleet was not in Toulon harbour on the 20th ult. nor did the Journalists of Paris know on the 1st of July where it was. It is impossible that it may have escaped the vi gilance of the British fleet after the blockade of the port was formed .- Star.

LONDON-JULY 7.

Plymouth letters of Friday's date, state as follows The John, floop cartel, Singleton, mafter, went to Morlaix a few days fince, with 15 or 16 French men from the prison ships, who had received passports; he arrived at Morlaix on Wednesday last, when, as ufual, a guard was fent on board him, which in general confifted of three foldiers; but he had a gunner and four put on board on his arrival, which was encreased to fix the same evening. The gunner informed him, that last Monday they received an account of an action with Lord St Vincent and the French fleet in - Bay, the name he could not recollect; but it was where the Spanish sleet lay: that the French fleet appeared just as Lord St Vincent was about to engage the Spanish; and that after a fevere action, Lord St Vincent was defeated with the lofs of feven or eight thips; and that the French had loft two thips, which funk during the action. The Committary's clerk, who brought him his paffport to depart, gave him exactly the same account which he also got from a third person.
"This man has frequently carried Frenchmen from hence, and was always permitted to land and go where he wished. I cannot however suppose that the precaution used on this occasion, augurs any thing unfavour able to Great Britain; and if an action has taken place which we very much doubt, I trust our next dispatches from the Mediterranean will do away any anxiety we may fuffer. Indeed I think there is little reason to expect fuch an event, as I have recited from Singleton verbatim; and as he was not suffered to land, as here tofore, I think we may prefume that our enemies took fuch precaution to prevent the communication of fome bad news which they have received. " The Spitfire, Captain Seymour, just arrived boarded a Danish ship from Carthagena, out 40 days on the 4th July, which ship had been boarded, after she had passed the Gut several days, by an Englist priva-teer from Gibraltar, which informed him Lord St Vincent had met the Spanish sleet off Cape de Gatt, and had beaten them, and taken feveral of them. mafter of the Dane knew the mafter of the privateer formerly, and could give credit to what he faid. This was near three weeks ago .- On the 1st of July he was boarded by a Spanish frigate, three others in company, in lat. 45. 37. long. 10.

" A gentleman arrived here last evening from Ma-which had convoyed the Indiamen to a certain lati- and by that of Gen. Herbert from the Grifon country tude; that the Diamond was chaced for a confiderable time by four Spanish frigates in line of battle, but neither of them chose to risk an action; and the Diamond, having superiority in failing, escaped. Soon after, she fell in with a packet from Lisbon, his Majesty's ships Dryad and Revolutionare, to whom the circumstance was related. This gentleman was on board the packet. and landed a day or two fince at Falmouth. The three frigates failed in company, under a press of fail, in search of the Spaniards."

In the Vengeance man of war which convoyed home the Leeward Island fleet, came passengers M. Barthelemi and General Willot, two of the victims of the 4th of September. A passport has been sent to Deal to allow them to come to London.

The Temeraire, of 98 guns, in momentary readiness to fail from Spithead, is, it is stated, intended to convey ord Elgin, family, and suite, to the Mediterranean.

The William Pitt, hired cutter of 14 guns, was, on the 6th of June, in the bay of Gibraltar, [whilft conveying from Lord St Vincent dispatches, which she funk, captured by a confiderable number of Spanish gun-boats. The Swallow Packet, it is faid, will take out letters for Madras and Bengal. The last Gazette contains an order in Council prohi-iting the exportation of copper.

The Duke of Norfolk we understand shortly purposes to retire from the political world. The estates of Norfolk, Surry, Howard, and Arundel streets, with some adjoining ground, it held by his Grace, on condition that the revenue ariling from it should be wholly expended in repairing and improving Arundel Callle. The Duke fought to be relieved from fo unnecessary and wanton appropriation, but has failed; and the produce of the estates in question, which, during the term of litigation, has amounted to nearly 200,000l. is now to be expended in rebuilding and adorning this venerable pile. His Grace intends personally to superintend the improvements, wholly to abstract himself from the busy anxious feene of politics, and to pass the remainder of his days in tranquil and splendid retirement.

The virtuous Thomas Paine's plan for revolutionizing America was lately in current circulation in France : it is worthy of its author. The American ariffocrats, he fays, " pursue measures wholly calculated to bring once more the United States under British domination. Should George the Third be driven from his throne, America will be his place of refuge; there he has depolited his funds, and, incredible as it may appear, there he will be King!"-This powerful influence of Britain in America, he states to arise from the inhabitants of the fea-ports; and to annihilate that influence, he propofes to destroy the medium. " The only way (fays he) to break up their ness is, to burn the fea-ports, and in this way compel them to live amongst the planters, far removed from the channels of corruption!"

The Court Martial held at Eastbourne on Cornet Collifon, acting Paymaster of the Ayrshire Fencible Cavalry, having, in pursuance of orders, resumed their sitting (not, as has been stated, in consequence of an informality in their proceedings, but for the purpose of afcertaining the balance of his account, their decision, approved of by his Majesty, has been announced in diftrict orders. The fentence directs, that Mr Collifon be difmiffed the fervice with every possible degree of ignominy and diffrace, mulcted of pay and arrears, rendered incapable of ever ferving his Majefly, and imprisoned until he shall have repaid the public money he had made away with, amounting to upwards of 3000l

Mr Collison, who had been a clerk in the office of Mess. Cox and Greenwood, on being appointed Paymalter of the Ayrshire, returned, according to the re gulations, the names of two perfons who were to be his They were, however, both disapproved, and he was directed to procure others .- This he neglected to do; and at the expiration of about a year, being urged to give the required bail, he absconded with all the public money he had been able to collect, 500l. of which he lodged, in his own name, in the bank of Plymouth, from whence it was drawn under his power of attorney, previous to his trial, and a confiderable part of which has been expended in his defence.

A novel and interesting question arises from this case. Upon whom the loss of the 3000l. should fall? Government iffued the money to the agents; the agents acted only as a medium of conveyance, and re-iffued it to the paymaster appointed by the Colonel, who was ignorant of him, and looked for the propriety of his conduct to those by whom he had been recommended whilst they again conceive it was the Colonel's business to have obtained fafety by infifting on the stipulated bail. As the 500l that had been in the Plymouth bank is the only part of the defalcation that can be traced, or that the prisoner has given any account of, and as even that is not forthcoming, the entire fum appears irrecoverable, and his confinement to be indefinite

The position of the French, at the distance of one league from hence, is almost impregnable; they occupy the chain of high mountains which run parallel with the Lake, from fouth-west to north-east; batteries defand its approach. On the 8th the Austrians made a flight attack upon the front of that position, on the Zurd road to Bremgarten.

The battle on the 5th inft. was a murderous At two o'clock in the morning the French attacked the Austrian out-posts in front of this place, profiting of the difadvantage of the position of the latter, which is parted by the Limmat, and of the circumstance, that that part of their army which was to affilt the other, was obliged to march through this city.

They succeeded in repulsing the Imperial out possion the camp, which consists chiefly of straw bots, and took some prisoners. ## EDINBURGH-7ULT II.

" You will hear of fome political event of confe-" quence shortly, as a gentleman (to my knowledge, a and few know it) is gone to the Continent, on a most s confidential mission .- I hope it tends to peace."

FROM OUR LONDON CORRESPONDENT.

HOUSE OF LORDS—July 8.

On the third reading of the Treason Forfeiture bill, Lord HOLLAND, in a speech of much animation and argument, opposed the bill both in principle and detail; to whom the Lord Chancellor replied.

The Duke of NORFOLK proposed that it might be continued in force but for one year, or till the end of the next Session of Parliament.

The Lord CHANCELLOR observed the punishment should keep pace with the crime, and as treason might be permanent, so should the penalties annexed to it. He opposed the amendment; on which the House diwided—For the amendment 5—Against it 11. The bill in its original state was then read a third time and

On the third reading of the Seditious Societies bill. On the third reading or the Seditious Societies bill, the Duke of Norrolk hoped that the Noble Lord (Grenville,) would not infift in making the penalties of this bill permanent; as the crimes flated in the bill were by its preamble conceived to be of a temporary nature.

Lord Grenville affented to the observation, and the in should be limited to the discretion. agreed that it should be limited to the duration of one year, or the end of next session of Parliament.

A clause to this effect was accordingly adopted. The flave carrying bill, after fome observations from Lord Thurlow, went through a Committee.

On the second reading of the militia reduction bill,

Lord CAERNARYON objected to it on the ground of the inequality of the reduction in different counties.

Lord GRENVILLE replied, and the bill was read a fecond time.

The Small Note Duty bill having gone into a committee, the Duke of ATHOL proposed a clause with respect to the British Linen Company, of the same nature as that moved in the Commons, of the result of which we are ignorant, as the House was left fitting. Monday arrived in London the Hamburgh mail which became due on Wednesday.—The intelligence it brings from Italy is nearly of the same as that which appeared in the French papers received in the course of the preceding week; the other mail now due is likely to bring very important news from the feat of war in that part of Europe.

By the Vienna Court Gazette Extraordinary, of the 16th ult. the junction of Generals MOREAU and MACDONALD's armies is officially announced; a measure which has probably been facilitated by the landing of French troops at Genoa; on which subject, however, this, and the Gazette of the 19th June, are entirely filent; the latter makes no further mention of any filent; the latter makes no further mention of any news from Italy or Switzerland.

By various accounts it appears, that Generals Monatau and Macbonald were concentrating their troops in great force. The allies were preparing to oppose them without hindrance to the close fiege of the citadels of Turin, Tortona, and Aleflandria. The corps under Field-Marthal Lieutenant-Generals Bellegards and Off; the divisions of Generals Frolich and Hohen-ZOLLERN; the brigades of Generals SECKENDORFF and ALCAINI, have all been united into a strong army of observation, ready to act every instant in support of the grand army of Field-Marshal Suwarrow. Hence the news of a general and bloody engagement may foon be expected, which, no doubt, will decide the fate of the French in Italy.

The official accounts from Switzerland only come down to the 9th, under which date the Archduke CHARLES Wrote to Vienna, that the French left ninety. CHARLES wrote to Vienna, that the French left minetyfour pieces of cannon in Zurich; and that the progreffive movements to Mount Saint Gotthard and the Devil's Bridge had been flopped by Colonel Prince RoMAN, Generals HRBERT and HADDICK.

Direct letters from Switzerland fay, that General

MASSENA disputes every inch of ground, and has obtained fome trifling advantages in the engagements fince Imperialists, whose head-quarters on the 15th were still a Klotten, where General Hotze and other Chiefs hold conferences every day.

From Constantinople we learn, that GHEZAR PACHA bas advanced upon the army of BUONAPARTE confiderably beyond St Jean d'Acre, and an official letter appears in the Petersburgh Court Gazette from GHEZAR PACHA to the PORTE, dated the 12th of April, confirming the account of the defeat of the French in their trenches near St Jean d'Acre.

Other accounts, however, represent BUONAPARTE as having approached farther into Syria, but these appear deserving of little credit.

Of the real disposition of the King of Prussia, the foreign Gazettes furnish no information that can be depended upon.

The rumour was, however, on Sunday revived, that he had demanded the restoration of the Stadtholder as the price of peace. The account is faid to have come from Rotterdam, and is nearly the fame in substance as that which appeared in the Paris prints, which we gave Much murmuring and discontent prevails in Holland and, in confequence of the departure of the French troops, a number of the more violent of the patriotic party, fo called, have emigrated, as if apprehensive ne political change were about to take place.

If the accounts in the Paris papers are true, that the French fleet had again failed from Toulon, they must have flipped out at a time when the English fquadron had been blown off the coast; we will however hope that they will not be able to escape. It is particularly defirable that they should not be suffered again to pass

By the London OBSERVER published on Sunday we have a report brought from Morlaix, that Lord Si VINCENT's fleet in the Mediterranean has been defeated by the French and Spaniards.—Previous to the bat-tle of the Nile we had a similar report that Lord NELson had been defeated; we have no doubt that the prefent report will have a fimilar termination, and what is stated in another paragraph, that the British fieet has gained a victory is certainly more likely to be foon con-firmed.

From a gentleman on board the Cambrian, now off Havre-de-Grace, we have this day received a letter, dated fo late as Friday last, forwarded to us from Portsmouth; it looks as if an action had really taken place, but with a very different refult from that stated in the French papers. By two spies received on board the same day, the Cambrian was informed, that in an engagement between the two sleets the French had been defeated, fifteen of their ships taken and five suck. We regret that the hurry in which our correspondent wrote, prevented his giving either the time or other circum-flances connected with the action; but should the news prove true, we may expect that Ministers will soon have it in their power to lay the particulars before the public .- Star, 8th inft.

The motion made by Lord HAWKESBURY respecting corn, is for the very important purpose of preventing the ill effects of a monopoly in that article, which, from the probability of a fearcity, is certainly begun. It feems Government have a watchful eye on the parties and their measures, and will in case of necessity procure an importation that will keep down the prices here. The bleffings of Providence, however, are, in this in-flance, likely to be bountifully given to us, the general accounts being in favour of a most productive season, in

NICHOLSON, Inspecting Officer for the southern district, inspected Major ERSKINE and Captain CAMP-BELL'S companies of Tweeddale volunteers at Peebles. The corps went through their manœuvres and firings in a manner that did great credit to themselves and their officers, and much to the fatisfaction of Colonel NI-CHOLSON, who was pleased to express his entire appro-bation of the appearance and discipline of this fine corps. Tuesday se'onight the HAWICK VOLUNTEERS, under the command of Captain CHISHOLM, affembled on the Common Haugh, the field being guarded and the crowd kept off by the Yeomanry Cavalry. The Volunteers formed the hollow fquare, one fide of which having been opened by a backwards wheel from the centre, Mrs Chisholm of Stirches, attended by a numerous and respectable company, approached the square with a handsome standard in her hands, which Mrs Chisholm, in a suitable address to the Licutemant of the company, presented to the corps, as a token of her respect for them; to which a proper reply was made by Licutemant Wilson, for her attention to the company in bestowing upon them so elegant and so proper a pre in bestowing upon them so elegant and so proper a present. After which the corps wheeled into line, and was inspected by Colonel NICHOLSON, and performed their marchings, wheelings, strings, and different maneuvres before a numerous body of spectators, to the statisfaction of the Inspecting Officer, and to the approbation of the company. In the afternoon, the whole corps, with the party of the Yeomanry Cavalry, dined together in the Tower Inn, when many loyal toasts were given, and the evening was spent with jolkity and

On Saturday last, the 1st and 2d corps of the Royal Dumfries Volunteers were inspected by Colonel No. CHOLSON, when he expressed himself highly pleased with their marching and firing. A detachment of the 10th regiment of militia kept the ground.

The JEDBURGH VOLUNTEERS were inspected on Monday last at Mounthooly-haugh, by Lieutenant Co-lonel Nicholson. He expressed his warmest approbation, not only of the appearance of the men, but also of the steadiness and regularity of their manœuvres. It is worthy of notice, that this corps has been disciplined without any military aid, and, notwithstanding, from their own exertions and attention, they have acquired a confiderable degree of proficiency in the use and management of their arms.

The Troop of Yeomanry Cavalry in the county of Selkirk, commanded by Captain PRINGLE of Torwoodlie, and the corps of Volunteer Infantry in Selkirk, commanded by Captain PRINGLE of Whitebank ware this day inspected by Colonel Nicholson, of the Royals, who expressed himself highly satisfied with the appearance, discipline, and manœuvres of these corps.

DUNBAR-9th July, 1799.
The May Flower of Stromnels, Captain Newgar. arrived here this day, and reports, than when off Aberdeen on Sunday laft, the fishermen informed him, that about four or five days before, a lugger privateer (the Sea Devil in gilt letters marked on her stern) had aptured a number of vessels on the north coast, three of whose crews they landed, with their own boat, at Aberdeen, and run two vessels on shore at or near same place. Defenceless eoasters foon become an easy prey to these troublers of tranquillity; and, very unfortunately for this country, Norway opens her ports as a receptacle for their prizes, and if they had not fuch a receipt, few captures would be made; and it is hoped that our Government will take notice of this without delay.

The La Virginie privateer of Calais, on Sunday fe'ennight the 30th of June, took the floop Brothers of Stornaway, Donald Nicolfon mafter, from Hamburgh for Aberdeen, with flax, off Stonehaven. On Tuef-day morning, the fame privateer captured the Lord Saltoun of Aberdeen, from Sunderland, with coals; and on Thursday morning, off Montrose, a galliot from Hamburgh to Liverpool, with grain. The masters of the Brothers and Lord Saltoun, and part of the crews of said vessels, were put on board the galliot's boat, and came icto Aberdeen harbour on Thursday evening. It appears, by the declarations of Mr NICOLSON, and of the Masters of several other vessels, that they came un-der convoy of the armed ship Good Design, Captain RATHBONE, who was to see them to the bay of Aber-RATHBONE, who was to lee them to the bay of Aberdeen, but that she left them on Sunday evening, when they were within a few miles of the port of Aberdeen. The privateer had yellow sides, was pierced for 14 guns, but had only fix mounted, had been twenty days out from Bergen, and made seven captures during that

THE EFFECT OF THE INCOME TAX ON THE PRICE OF LAND.

The income tax, could it be accurately collected, is certainly the most equitable that could well be devised. It has many obvious advantages over every other tax that has yet been laid on the public, feveral of which have been taken notice of in this, as well as other perio-dical publications; but there is one material confequence of this tax that feems to have escaped general observa-cion, it will prevent the price of land from failing be-neath its proper value.

Great part of the monied men in Britain confift of gentlemen, who, from small beginnings, have made for-tunes in the East or West Indies. Many of these being bachelors, upon coming home, vested their money in Government stocks, from which they drew their in-terest, without the smallest deduction. They at the fame time got free of most of the public taxes, by keeping no establishment or house of their own, but siving in hired lodgings in London or tome other large town. A person, in this way, might have had 50,000s or 100,000s in the stocks, with an income of 2500s or 100,000. In the Hocks, with an income of 25001 or 50001. a-year, and not have paid perhaps above 51 or 101. a-year to Government in taxes, while a landed gentleman, living in the country, was obliged to keep his carriage and horses, with an establishment of servants, and was subjected to land tax, tithes, poor rates, and many other heavy burdens.

The monied man will not now have the same impro per advantages. If his income in the stocks is 2500l. or 5000l. a-year, he will be in no better, or rather a worse situation, than a landholder with the same rental. Both will pay ten per cent. on their income, or 250l. or 500l. a-year to Government; but from this income the latter is allowed to deduct the land-tax and the public burdens, as well as the expence of collecting his allowance is even made him for improving his estate.

In several respects, therefore, the landed gentleman s now in a better fituation than the stockholder of per cents. The income of the latter never can increase by any fortunate circumstance whatever, and the principal or price of stock, by the unavoidable fall in time of war, must frequently be diminished; whereas, from an experience of above a century patt, it is found, that the rent of land, not with standing all our wars, has been invariably on the increase, and the value of an estate, it the space of 20 years, nearly double.

Hence it appears, that the price of land, instead of falling, must naturally rife, in confequence of the income tax. Hence, alfo, it is evident, that it is now the interest of monied men to invest their fortunes in land rather than in stocks, of which the income never can increase. and the principal itself is so liable to depreciation.

It is furprifing this idea has not flruck the monie men fooner; it, however, needs only to be fuggested .-A word to the wife is enough.

BLUE-EYED MARY

In a cottage embosom'd within a deep shade,
Like a rose in a desart, Oh! view the meek maid;
Her aspect all sweetness, all plaintive her eye,
And a bosom for which e'en a Monarch might sigh.
Then in neat Sunday gowh see her met by the 'Squire, All attraction ber countenance, bir all deire.
He accosts her—she blushes—he flatters—she smiles;
And soon blue-eyed Mary's seduc'd by his wiles. And soon blue-eyed Mary's seduc'd by his wiles.

Now with drops of contricted her pillow's wet o'er;

But the fleece when once stain'd can give sweetness no more
The aged folks whisper, the utaidens look shy:
To town the 'squite presses—liow can she deny?

There behold her in lodgings—She dresses in style,
Public places frequents, sighs no more, but reads floyle?;
Learns to squander—They quarrel—his love turns to hate,
And soon blue-eyed Mary is left to her fate.
Still of beauty possess'd, and not yet void of shame,
With a heart that recoils at the prostrute's name,
She tries for a service—her character's gone—
And for skill at her needle, alas! 'tis unktiown.

Pale want now approaches; the pawnbroker's near, She tries for a service—her character's gone—And for skill at her needle, alas! 'tis unknown.
Pale want now approaches; the pawnbroker's near,
And her trinkers and clothes, one by one, disappear;
Till at length, sorely pinch'd, and quite desperate grown.
The poor blue-eyed Mary is fore'd on the town.
In a brothel next see her, trick'd out to allure,
And all ages, all humours, compell'd to endure;
Compell'd, tho disgusted, to wheedle and fengt,
With an aspect all drilles, and a bostom all pain.
Now cares'd, now insulted, now flatter'd, now scom'd,
And by ruffirms and drunkards oft wantonly spara'd.
This worst of all misery she's doom'd to endure.
For the poor blue-eyed Mary is now an impure.
Whilst thus the barb'd arrow sinks deep in her soul,
She flies for relief to that traitor the bowl;
Grows supid and bloated, and lost to all shame,
Whilst a dreadful disease is pervading her frame.
Now with eyes dim and languid the one blooming maid,
In a garret in straw faint and helyles is laid;
Oh! mark her pale cheek, see, she scarce draws her breatley
And lo! her blue eyes are now scal'd up in death.
